TARIFF ON FOREIGN SILVER.

RENO, July 14, 1890.

EDITOR NEVADA STATE JOURNAL:—The bullion purchasing bill having been signed by the President, now let our friends at Washington complete their work by putting in the tariff bill an import duty of 25 cents per ounce upon silver and silver coin.

The Republicans should support such a measure because it would extend protection to a great industry, and would quiet the apprehensions which many Eastern financiers entertain, or pretend to entertain, concerning the pouring upon us of an avalanche of foreign silver, and the Democrats should support it because its immediate and direct and inevitable effect would be to put silver to par in this country, and so bring about free coinage.

With a purchaser provided by law for our entire product and foreign silver practically excluded from competition by a tariff, we could hold the fort until Europe was forced into remonetization of silver, and then with universal free coinage we could remove the tariff.

THOMAS FITZ.

Farmers throughout North and South Dakota are becoming agitated over the scarcity of labor. Hundreds of men are needed in every county to save the big wheat crop that is now coming forward. Wages will be from two to three dollars per day from the opening of haying to the end of the threshing season, July 15th to December 1st.

The President approved the Silver bill immediately upon its receipt at the White House. Hurrah for Harrison. He's all right, and thanks to the Republicans for some good legislation, with silver up 15 points since the campaign. Bar silver 108. It will be 129 soon.

Gen. John O. Fremont died Sunday at New York. The Pathfinder has started upon his last expedition, and may it be a pleasant one.

Harrison did not refer the Silver bill to the Secretary of the Treasury or any other Cabinet officer.

Rush for Senators Jones, Stewart and Congressman Bartine. They have done good work.

The Gazette has some sensible remarks on State affairs in last night's issue.

Tennis courts are now a feature of Reno amusements.

IS DEWEY A CANDIDATE.

Republican Managers Hard at Work Booming Him for the Presidency.

A Chicago dispatch says the managers of the Chauncey Depew boom for the Presidency are hard at work in that city. They are shrewd and practical politicians, and they lose no opportunity of bringing out their candidate, who possesses a comely appearance as well as a rich vocabulary and never fails to make a favorable impression on an audience. It is only a few weeks since Dr. Depew faced a splendid audience in the Auditorium and told them all he knew about "The World's Fair." The address, as all oratorical efforts of the great New Yorker, was brilliant and interesting, but it really contained little that was new. A movement is now on foot to get Depew again this Fall for another lecture, and then he will be induced to visit Harrison's home—Indiana—on some pretext or another. Not content with presenting him to a large and fashionable audience, when here the "boomers" arranged a banquet in his honor. It was not largely attended but was a very select affair. The figure charged for each plate was $20. This high price for a meal kept the Democrats away, and hence the banquet had something of the character of a Republican love feast. If Depew can bring a solid delegation to the next National Convention from New York, the politicians prophesy that he will not be forced by the granger element, as he was in the Chicago convention, to ascend the platform and announce the collapse of his candidacy for the nomination.

A Yellowstone Excursion.

To meet a demand at this season an excursion has been arranged by the Union Pacific Passenger Department to go from Omaha, Neb., to Yellowstone National Park, Shoshone Falls, Salt Lake City, Gardfield Beach, Denver and other points of interest. The railroad company will furnish 6-horse Concord coaches, which will carry the party from Beaver canyon, Idaho, to and through the Yellowstone. These coaches will also be taken to Shoshone Falls. At each stopping place, such as Ogden, Salt Lake City, Cheyenne and Denver, the coaches will be unloaded, and the tourists conveyed from the depot to the hotels. Afterward a ride to all points of interest in each city will be taken. From Beaver canyon to Yellowstone Park will occupy three days going, three days returning and eight days will be spent in the Park. Excellent tents and good equipment for camping will be furnished, and while in the Park the tourists will be quartered at the various hotels. The rate for the round trip will be $225, including hotel bills for the trip which will take thirty days.

"UNLESS YOU KNOW."

Josh Billings is credited with the aphorism that "it is always dangerous to prophesy unless you know." Apropos of silver and politics the Washington, D. C. Sentinel says:

Whatever may be the outcome of the silver question in Congress it is certain to become an element of controversy in the campaign this Fall, especially in the West. We have our own views on this important subject, and they are far from being in accord with the extremists on either side. But it is only fair that aspirants for political honors, and who are using all means to promote their ambition, should be seen in the records they have made. Mr. Cleveland seeks industriously, in and out of season a third nomination for the Presidency. Since his enforced departure from the White House he has omitted no opportunity to pose before the public in that capacity.

Before his inauguration, Mr. Rangan, Mr. Bland, Mr. Warner and other Democratic representatives addressed Mr. Cleveland a respectful letter, asking him "not to commit himself or the Administration to the policy of suspending the coinage of silver, etc." They also inquired if he would receive a deputation to present their views on this subject.

Mr. Cleveland snubbed this proposition for a personal conference, and required the opinions to be submitted in writing, which was accordingly done. The following answer was given to the public a few days before he started for Washington:

To the Hon. A. J. Warner and others, members of the Forty-eighth Congress: GENTLEMEN—The letter which I have had the honor to receive from you invites and indeed obliges me to give expression to some grave public necessities, although in advance of the moment when they would become the objects of my official care and partial responsibility. Your solicitude that my judgment should have been our fully and deliberately formed is entirely just, and I accept the suggestion in the same friendly spirit in which it has been made. It is also fully justified by the nature of the financial crisis which under the operation of the Act of Congress of February 23, 1878, is now close at hand. By a compliance with the requirement of that law all the vaults of the Federal Treasury have been and are heaped full of silver coins, which are now worth less than 85 per cent of the gold dollar prescribed as "the unit of value" in Section 14 of the Act of February 12, 1873, and which, with the silver certificates representing such coin, are receivable for all public dues. Being thus receivable, while also constantly increasing in quantity at the rate of $28,000,000 a year, it has followed, of necessity, that the flow of gold into the treasury has been steadily diminished. Silver and silver certificates have displaced and are displacing gold, and the sum of gold in the Federal Treasury now available for the payment of the gold obligations of the United States and for the redemption of United States notes, called "greenbacks," it not already encroached upon, is seriously near such encroachment.

These are facts, which, as they do not admit of difference of opinion, call for no argument. They have been forewarned to us in the official reports of every Secretary of the Treasury from 1878 till now. They are plainly affirmed in the last December report of the present Secretary of the Treasury to the Speaker of the present House of Representatives. They appear in the official documents of this Congress and in the records of the New York Clearing House of which the Treasury is a member, and through which the bulk of the receipts and payments of the Federal Government and of the country pass.

These being the facts of our present condition, our danger and our duty to avert that danger would seem to be plain. I hope that you concur with me, and with the great majority of our fellow citizens in deeming it most desirable at the present juncture to maintain and continue in use the mass of our gold coin as well as the mass of silver already coined. This is possible by a present suspension of the purchase and coinage of silver. I am not aware that by any other method it is possible. It is of momentous importance to prevent the two metals from parting company; to prevent the disease of gold in the Custom Houses of the United States, in the daily business of the people; to prevent the ultimate expulsion of gold by silver. Such a financial crisis as these events would certainly precipitate were it now to follow upon so long a period of commercial depression would involve the people of every city and every State in the Union in a prolonged and disastrous trouble. The revival of business enterprise and prosperity so ardently desired and apparently so near would be hopelessly postponed. Gold would be withdrawn to its hoarding places, and an unprecedented contraction in the actual volume of our currency would speedily take place. Sadder of all, in every workshop, mill, factory, store, and on every railroad and farm the wages of labor, already depressed, would suffer still further depression by a scaling down of the purchasing power of every so-called dollar paid into the hands of toil. From these impending calamities it is surely a most patriotic and grateful duty of the representatives of the people to deliver them.

I am, gentlemen, with sincere respect, your fellow citizen,

GROVER CLEVELAND.

ALBANY, February 24, 1885. We do not propose to discuss the policy advocated by Mr. Cleveland in this letter, but there are some statements in it that show he was entirely ignorant of the financial history of the Government and legislation on the subject he pretended to discuss. Referring to the soliloquy of his correspondents in regard to silver coinage, he says:

It is fully justified by the nature of the financial crisis, which, under the operation of the Act of Congress, of February 23, 1878, is now close at hand.

More than five years have passed away since this positive prophecy of a "financial crisis" "near at hand" was made, and it is no nearer fulfillment now than it was when Mr. Cleveland, adopting the sentiment of Wall street, was so confident of an impending crash.

Again: Silver and silver certificates have displaced and are now displacing gold, and the sum of gold in the Federal Treasury now available for the payment of the gold obligations of the United States. Mr. Cleveland does not seem to have known that there was not at the time he wrote, nor at any other time, before or since, any "gold obligations of the United States." The bonds and other issues of the Government were made payable in "coin." When silver was restored by the Act of February 23, 1878, after having been demonetized by the gold speculators in 1873, who made hundreds of millions of dollars by that smuggled law, silver dollars were made legal tender "for all debts and dues, public and private unless otherwise expressly stipulated in the contract."

BURYAL OF THE BOOTS.

Hence it is perfectly clear that Mr. Cleveland was entirely unacquainted with the laws relating to the public obligations when he assumed and asserted that they were payable in "gold" alone.

Again, Mr. Cleveland contended that unless silver coinage was suspended it would result "in the ultimate expulsion of Gold." The test of this assertion, like others, equally unfounded, is experience, which he had partly before him, or could have had, when writing this absurd letter. Between the years 1879 and 1889 we imported $163,639,755 more gold than was exported. During the four years of Mr. Cleveland's term the gold imported into the United States exceeded the gold exported by $49,733,959.

These facts and figures, which more concern Mr. Cleveland's reliability as a prophet and a so-called statesman than the merits of the abstract silver question, except indirectly, leave him in rather an awkward dilemma. The honest truth is, he accepted the fabricated statements of Wall street as authentic data, and used them as if they had an official stamp to guarantee their integrity.

We commend Mr. Cleveland to those "free coinage Democrats" who have been so ardently demanding a third nomination for this Mugwump patriot.

NEVADA'S FISH HATCHERY.

This is from the Carson Appeal:

It now transpires that many of the fish shipped to Elko died on the passage for want of proper accommodations and the long distance they were transported.

California's hatchery for the last few years has been turning out a very inferior quality of trout, and in no way can they compare with the Nevada production.

Fish Commissioner Mills has devoted considerable valuable time to the propagation and cultivation of fish in this State and it seems to us that the Legislature ought to appropriate more money to carry out the enterprise. The present amount is $1,000 a year (or two years, when it ought to be double that for the protection of this beneficial feature connected with the State.

The hatchery is at present situated in a very inconvenient place, and during the heated term the water is frequently shut off, thus making it necessary to connect with the railroad water to keep the spaw alive. Should at any time a mistake occur and the hatchery not be supplied, the destruction would amount to some 5,000,000 fish in the spaw.

What the Commissioner needs is an ample appropriation, sufficient to meet all demands and place the hatchery in a locality where no fear of drought would hinder the hatching process, and at the same time bring it nearer the principal bodies of water that are at present only partially stocked.

Were California capable of producing such fish as Nevada does, the Legislature of that State would readily appropriate enough money to put the Fish Commissioner on a sound financial footing.

There will be plenty of water in this State the next two years, and what we want now is money to stock it with fish; the best in the world.

"A LONG LANE."

Several Turns in That to be Presented To-morrow Night.

The venerable saying that "It's a long lane that has no turn," is verified in the rustic drama to be presented at the Opera House to-morrow evening, as the scenery discloses many pleasant turns through hedge and foliage in the long vista of lane presented on canvas. The play is a mixture of comedy and drama in which pathos and humor are harmoniously blended. The plot includes love scenes in rustic bowers, dances on moonlit lawns and other charming features of rural life, presented by first-class comedy and dramatic talent.

This will probably be the last theatrical entertainment at the Opera House until next September, Manager Piper having no companies booked for an earlier date.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. feb. 21-sw-ly

The U. S. District Judgeship.

The Carson Tribune asserts that petitions recommending the appointment of Judge R. R. Bigelow as Judge Sabin's successor have been largely signed in Elko, Humboldt, Washoe, Eureka and Lander counties.

Storey county petitions for the appointment of Judge Richard Rising.

In Lincoln, Nye, Esmeralda, Churchill, Ormsby and Douglas petitions have been very generally signed recommending the appointment of Hon. Tremor Coffin.

Dayton, Lyon county, petitions for the appointment of Judge Rising, while in Mason valley, (same county) almost the entire community petitions for the appointment of Mr. Coffin.

Col. Fred Crocker says:

I can say it is true without a doubt that the Santa Fe people are now planning very actively to extend their road to this city. I have no notion as to where they will come up nor where they will enter the city. The Donohue Line is hardly practicable for their terminus. Oakland water-front is pretty well controlled, but so far as I am concerned I would be as willing to sell what interests I have there to a railroad company as to anyone, but they would have to pay my price for it.

BURYAL OF THE BOOTS.

SOME SUPERSTITIONS ABOUT DEAD MEN'S SHOES.

Where a Funeral Is Called a Dead Shoe. Pretty Little Stories in Which Shoes Are Prominent Characters—How the Queen Moved the Farmer.

The superstition of the burial of the boots probably survives in England. It is about seventeen years since the writer heard from an old gypsy that when another gypsy was "pavado," or "earthed," a very good pair of boots was placed by him in the grave. The reason was not given; perhaps it was not known. These customs often survive after the cause is forgotten, simply from some feeling that good or bad luck attends their observance or the neglect of it.

Many years since a writer in an article on shoes in The English Magazine stated that "according to an Aryan tradition, the greater part of the way from the land of the living to that of death lay through morasses and thick moors overgrown with ferns and thorns. That the dead might not pass over them barefoot, a pair of shoes was laid with them in the grave."

The shoe was of old in many countries a symbol of life, liberty, or entire personal control. In Ruth we are told that "it was the custom in Israel concerning changing, that a man plucked off his shoe and delivered it to his neighbor." So the bride, who was originally a slave, transferred herself by the symbol of the shoe.

When the Emperor Wladimir made proposals of marriage to the daughter of Ragnold, she replied scornfully that she would not take off her shoes to the son of a slave. Gregory of Tours, in speaking of weddings, says: "The bridegroom, having given a ring to the bride, presents her with a shoe."

A CURIOUS CUSTOM.

As regards the Scandinavian hel-shoe, or hell-shoe, Kelley, in his "Indo-European Folk Lore," tells us that a funeral is still called a dead shoe in the Heneberg district; and the writer already cited adds that in a MS. of the Cotton library, containing an account of Cleveland in Yorkshire in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, there is a passage which illustrates this curious custom. It was quoted by Sir Walter Scott in the notes to "Minstrelsy of the Scottish Border," and runs thus: "When any dieth certain women sing a song to the dead body, reciting the journey that the party deceased must go; and they are of belief that once in their lives it is good to give a pair of new shoes to a poor man; forasmuch as before this life they are to pass barefoote through a great land, full of thorns and furzen—excepts by the meryte of the almes aforesaid they have redeemed the forfeyte—for at the edge of the lands an oulde man shall meet them with the same shoes that were given by the partie when he was lying, and after he hath shodde them dismisseth them to go through thick and thin without scratch or scalle."

This must be a very agreeable reflection to all gentlemen who have bestowed their old boots on waiters, or ladies who have in like fashion gifted their maids. To be sure, the legend specifies new shoes; but surely a pair of thirty shilling boots only half worn count for as much as a new pair of half a sovereign chausures. However, if one is to go "through thick and thin without scratch or scalle," it may be just as well to be on the safe side, and give a good new extra stout pair to the gardener for Christmas. For truly the superstitions are strange things, and no one knows what may be in them! There are one or two quaint shoe stories of the olden time which may be of value to the collector.

CURIOS IN SHOES.

It befel once in the beginnings of Bohemia that, according to Schafarik ("Slawische Alterthumer," H. p. 423, Libussa, queen of that land, found herself compelled by her council to wed. And the wise men, being consulted, declared that he who was to marry the queen would be found by her favorite horse, who would lead the way till he found a man eating from an iron table, and kneel to him. So the horse went on, and unto a place where a man sat eating a peasant's dinner from a plowshare. So they covered him with the royal robes and led him to the queen expectant. But ere going he took his shoes of willow wood and placed them in his bosom, and kept them to remind him ever after of his low origin.

It will, of course, at once strike the reader, as it has the learned, that this is a story that would naturally originate in any country where there are iron plowshares, horses, queens and wooden shoes; and as Schafarik shrewdly suggests, that it was all "a put up job," since, of course, Frschemisch was already a lover of the queen, the horse was trained to find him and to kneel before him, and, finally, that the plowshare and wooden shoes were the prepared properties of the little drama. The Seven-League boots and the shoes of Peter Schlemihl, which take one over the world at will, have a variation in a pair recorded in another tale.

There was a beautiful and extremely proud damsel, who refused a young man with every conceivable aggravation of the offence, informing him that when she ran after him, and not before, that he might hope to marry her; and at the same time meeting a poor old woman who begged her for a pair of old shoes. To which the proud princess replied: Shoes here, shoes there; Give me a couple, I'll give thee a pair.

To which the old woman, who was a witch, grimly uttered, "I'll give thee a pair which"—The rest of the expression was really too unamiable to repeat. Well, the youth and the witch met, and going to the lady's shoemaker, "made him make" a superbly elegant pair of shoes, which were sent to the damsel as a gift. Such a gift! No sooner were they put on than off they started, carrying the princess, malgré elle, over hill and dale. By and by she saw that a man—the man, of course, whom she had refused—was in advance of her. As in the song of the "Cork Leg," "the shoes never stopped, but kept on the pace." And the young man led her to a lonely castle and reasoned with her. And as she had promised to marry him should she ever run after him, and as she had promised him a whole day, she kept her word with gold, and they were wedded, and all went as merry as a thousand grigs in a duck pond.—St. James Gazette.

A Sure Test.

Noted Detective (at friend's house)—This guest of yours, who you say, came to you with such flattering letters of introduction, is an impostor.

Friend—Impossible! He is one of the most cultured gentlemen I ever met.

"True; but all the same, he is not what he pretends to be. He claims to be a man of family, a householder, and in business in a small town."

"Yes, is he not?"

"No, he does not live in any home of his own; he is used to hotels and boarding houses."

"How do you know?"

"Before beginning a meal he wipes his plate off with his napkin."—New York Weekly.

AN OLD MAN'S SOLILOQUY.

"To take or not to take it, is the question—Whether 'tis better to suffer this curbing surgery, a splinter—braving the smiles of those who would insist that I take the remedy my sisters take, or take the remedy my sisters take, and be a part of the immortal founts of life sought in vain in Florida's peaceful shades." "Oh have heard my married sisters say (I know that good old Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription would bring back color to a faded cheek—Restore the health of one who faint would die to rid herself of all the pain she feels."

The aforesaid splinter took the remedy—and forthwith took a husband also, having regained her health and blooming beauty. Thousands of women owe their fresh blooming countenances to the restorative effects of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of leucorrhoea, excessive flowing, painful menstruation, natural suppression, profluvium, or falling of the womb, weak back, "female weakness," anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb.

Lyon's Population.

The Lyon County Times says:
The population of Lyon county has not changed much in the last ten years. Estimates made on the basis of four people to one voter do not hold good, and the late returns show that three to one is nearer the average. In 1880 the county contained 1,530 people. The annexation of a portion of Esmeralda county since then gave us 700 more people. According to the late returns the county contains 1,978 people, exclusive of Putes and Chinamen. Dayton and Jerusalem have 649, Silver City 431, Sinto and Ft. Churchill 122, Wabuska 66, Mason Valley 521, Smith Valley, 183. There are 485 Putes and Chinese, which brings our total population up to 2,463.

Population of Eureka.

The population of the town of Eureka is said to be 1,600, and of the entire county 2,600, including Indians and Chinese.

CENSUS ESTIMATES.

The Virginia Enterprise says:

BISHOP WHITAKER'S SCHOOL.

A Successful Term Just Closed—A Review of the Several Departments.

Among the institutions of this State that deserve favor and encouragement from its residents none is more deserving than Bishop Whitaker's School for Girls at Reno.

The Enterprise says of it: "This home for our Nevada girls, founded by one who was in a position to see the evil influence which surrounded the majority of our girls, either at home or in society, has since its foundation been considered one of the best schools on the coast. The teachers have always been selected with the greatest care, and that the faculty of the term just closed is equal to any that has preceded it is proven by the superior work at the commencement. The essays of the graduates, the careful training shown by the juniors in the elocutionary drill, and the remarkable spelling of the whole school prove each in its own way the high standing of the academic department.

"The art school is also praiseworthy. Few of the scholars were able at the beginning of the year to draw with pencil, but at the close of school about forty pictures in oil, water color and crayon were on exhibition, and several of them were little gems.

"The music department has since the beginning of the school been unexcelled. The musical taste of all those who have been its fortunate members has been developed, while the unwieldy fingers were taught to execute.

"The parents of our girls should bear in mind that within our State there is a home school for our girls where every attention is given to the cultivation of their minds and talents, and their souls and bodies receive the best possible care."

The Virginia Chronicle says:

Bishop Whitaker's School for Girls owes no apology for its existence; it is the only school exclusively for girls (except the convent) in the State of Nevada, and as long as there is young girls to be sent away from home, there will be need for schools especially adapted to their wants—schools where their manners, their morals, their health receives the loving care that growing girls demand, and yet schools where the discipline never relaxes into the indulgence too often found in home life.

The art and music departments are under the control of competent teachers. The grounds are, without doubt, the most beautiful in the State, and allow the girls such exercise of lung and limb as modern ideas of hygiene demand. Miss Julia Megquier is the Principal, to whom all letters of inquiry should be addressed.

Pacific Brewery Beer.

Pacific Brewery beer is conceded to be superior to any in this market. It is brewed from the best quality of malt and hops and no saloon is complete without Pacific beer on draft. J. G. Kerth, proprietor of the Pacific Brewery, has made the brewing of beer a life study, and the best evidence that he has succeeded in pleasing the public and that he will eventually drive all foreign beers from this market.

A Change of Teachers.

The Lyon County Times says:
Professor Lewers, who for the past four years has taught the grammar department of the Dayton school, and who was again elected to teach for another term, has resigned to accept the position of Principal of the Business Department of the State University. Mr. Lewers is a first-class teacher and has become so well acquainted that his many friends here were very loth to see him leave.

THE RENO RUNNERS.

Misfortunes That Have Befallen the Winters Stable.

The Examiner says: "The falling of the filly Noretta in the race at Chicago and the killing of the jockey Abbas is another in the long series of ill-happenings that have fallen to the lot of the Winters stable. Last year Theodore Winters was considered the luckiest man on the turf. This season he is considered the most unlucky. If there is such a thing as a racing 'hoodoo' it has taken up its abode in the Winters stable. The ill-luck began at Westchester last Fall with the illness of El Rio Rey. That illness ruined him, for all the care that was given him after the stable went to Nashville was thrown away, and when all the expenses of Wintering and training had been paid a broken-down horse repaid them for it.

"The two-year-olds of the Winters stable that left the ranch in Nevada in the Spring were considered a superior lot, but they have not earned their training expenses yet, and there does not seem any likelihood of their winning their oats, the way they are running now. Winters sold one colt while in St. Louis and gave Don Jose away to some relatives. Neither of these had done anything, although Don Jose was a winner last year and did his part toward swelling the purse of his owner.

"Joe Courtney has not come up to his form of last year by any means. The filly Noretta seemed a probable winner on the day of the unlucky race and she was backed heavily, only to trip in taking a desperate chance and kill her jockey. Winters even went to the extent of changing his trainers in order to get some improvement from his horses, but with the exception of Noretta the new men has made no showing yet."

Peculiar

Many peculiar points make Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines. Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom. Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which one hundred doses cost one dollar. Medicines in larger and smaller bottles regulate larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's. Peculiar in its medicinal merits, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won for itself the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered." Peculiar in its "good name at home,"—there is now more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers. Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time, and retained its popularity and confidence among all classes of people so steadfastly. Do not be induced to buy other preparations, but be sure to get the Peculiar Medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.
